Lives Of 100 Americans Endangered Today When Japanese Bomb Chinese Warehouse; Six Chinese Killed By Blast; Cunningham Says Apology Came Immediately After Incident; Jap Offensive To Begin Feb. 15

TOKYO, Feb. 11.—The expected general Japanese offensive in the Shanghai area will begin on February 15, Shanghai dispatches said today.

The new reinforcements recently dispatched are to be landed along the Woosung front during the next two days, according to the reports.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 11.—A formal apology for the bombing of the Wingon cotton mill by a Japanese airplane. Causing the death of six Chinese and endangering the lives of 100 United States marines, was delivered to United States Consul General Edwin R. Cunningham by the Japanese consul general today.

The mill, located in the American marine defense area of the international settlement along Socchoo creek, was badly damaged. The incident would have been worse but for the fact that an incendiary bomb dropped by the low-flying Japanese plane failed to ignite.

Cunningham stated that no protest had been made regarding the bombing, the Japanese consul immediately expressing his regret and characterizing the incident as a mistake.

"I hope," said Cunningham, "that this will illustrate the danger of planes flying over the set-

SHANGHAI, Feb. 11.—American and Chinese physicians are struggling to combat today a new epidemic of small-pox among the refugee camps here.

Admiral Nomura, commander-in-chief of all Japanese forces here, followed the consul's lead by calling upon Assistant Montgomery M. Taylor, commanding American troops. He expressed his deep regret over the incident and offered compensation to the relatives of the victims, who were four men and two women. Sixteen others were injured.

Rear Admiral Shimada, chief of staff, issued a statement declaring that during the past few days whenever Japanese fired on Chinese troops, the Chinese moved nearer the settlement boundary, thus preventing the use of artillery for fear of shells falling within.

Shimada has ordered the evacuation of the Sino-Japanese hostilities that they have become unable to visit all the camps. Several Chinese charitable societies have undertaken to prevent the disease from spreading.

Americans Set Bob Sled Mark

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 11.—Lake Placid stayed up until early today talking about those Stevens boys.

Lake Placid has been talking about those Stevens boys, Curtis, Paul, Hubert and Ray, ever since they were born. As kids they were reckless and daring and now that they are old enough to run the hotel bearing their name, they are still reckless and daring—and Lake Placid loves them for it.

Yesterday Hubert and Curtis Stevens teamed up to win the Olympic two-man bob title from the equally daring young Swiss driver, Reto Capadruitt.

SHATTER RECORD
With Hubert of the steel arm and the keen eye, driving and Curtis of the quizzical smile and the graying hair acting as brake, their bob twice shattered the world's record, which Capadruitt had established here earlier.

Going into the second day of competition on the Olympic bobsled run, Capadruitt held a time advantage that seemed to guarantee him the title.

His two runs on Tuesday gave him a four-second lead over the Stevens' team and then when he streaked down the slope in 2:03.52 on his first attempt it looked as though the Stevens boy had betted too high on his own name. But then Stevens chilled the crowd by dashing down the run in the amazing time of 1:59.69 to shatter Capadruitt's record which had stood for ten minutes.

Stevens was still a full second behind however, so on his second and final attempt he shot the work.

No man even came nearer death than those two Stevens boys did on their final run.

They roared high on the turns at Shady Corner and at zig zag. They flashed by as red streaks. It was here they came, and "there they go," as the crowds caught just a fleeting glimpse of their jaugernaut sliding over the ice.

Capadruitt still had a chance and the young Swiss, a University of Zurich student, did his best. He too refused to take the margin of safety as he insolently laughed at dangers of the turns. His time of 1:59.67 was of course glorious but it wasn't fast enough to win the title. His total time was 3:16.23, while Stevens finished with 3:14.74 for the four trips.

Prodigal Mauler Facing Big Test

The riddle that has perplexed fight fans as to whether the old Manassa Mauler is serious about his comeback is about to be answered. Ring experts have long been shaking their heads as news of Jack Dempsey's barnstorming bouts, with an imposing string of knockouts, made the rounds of fandom. The wise ones were insistent that the tiger-like Dempsey of old is but a memory and that his barnstorming opponents are so much set-ups. But when the Mauler meets King Levinsky on February 18, in the Chicago Stadium, the word set-up will hardly be applicable. For the King is a warrior regarded by many experts as being in the forefront of heavyweight contenders. If the former champion puts the quietus on Levinsky, one can reasonably assume that the Manassa Mauler is still a power to be reckoned with in the squared circle. Above, left, is a photo of Dempsey as he is today. Looks like the McCoy, doesn't he? Right is Levinsky, credited with the punch that makes a champ. Inset, Dempsey and his opponent-to-be are shown in a friendly chat at one of Dempsey's training sessions.

Hornsby Will Put 16 Cubs' Rookies Through Workouts At Training Camp

CHICAGO.—Come February 16, and Rogers Hornsby and his brood Chicago of Bruin rookies will replace the mountain goats as the principle item of interest on Catalina Island.

For on that date Manager Hornsby and his right and left hand men, Charley O'Leary and "Red" Corriden, will begin putting some sixteen Cub rookies over the hurdles. The veterans are due on the island some ten days later.

The Rajah is particularly anxious to get a line on Lyle Tinning, Stan Hack and Marvin Gudat. Tinning is the chap who set the pace for season. A right hander he won twenty-four and lost but two games for Des Moines.

Gudat is a ball pounding outfielder obtained from Columbus. His batting average last season was .343, which is a pretty fair mark in any league.

Hornsby is relying on his veterans to handle the pitching assignments. He has been in the

Statewide Insurance for High School Gridders Favored By Educators

COLUMBUS, O.—Some plan of state-wide insurance against injury to high school football players is an immediate necessity, officials of the Ohio high school athletic association have learned from a survey of 310 Buckeye high schools.

These schools were represented by more than 10,000 of the 15,500 boys who played football in this state during the past season. Answer to the questionnaire resulted from conferences of athletic authorities and coaches in most cases.

FAVOR INSURANCE
When asked "would you favor some plan of state-wide insurance similar to that of Wisconsin," whereby the state association carries insurance of all high school athletics, 232 responded "yes," 37 "no." Some, apparently not acquainted with the Wisconsin plan, did not vote.

The survey also showed that there was a big decrease in injuries during the past season. Two hundred thirty-two institutions reported a decrease while only 51 reported more.

Although two deaths occurred during the season, neither could be attributed directly to football. An infection in a slight wound proved fatal to a member of the Akron Garfield team, while an abscess at the base of the spine killed a Niles player.

While 60 schools suggested changes in rules and regulation to reduce injuries, the majority of coaches and officials were of the opinion that the rules and game are all right and should be left alone. Among the methods suggested were elimination of the wedge as well as the kick-off and the return of the tee.

BLAME TRAINING
Accidents, many school officials coaches said, resulted from improper equipment lack of training, and the tolerance by game officials of piling and general roughness. Stricter officiating was urged to check this.

COSHOCKTON CRASHES ARE FATAL TO TRIO
COSHOCKTON, O., Feb. 11.—Three more lives were written into the death side of the Coshockton traffic ledger today.

Mary Simmons, 19, was killed when she drove her car in the path of a Pennsylvania passenger train and McBee Shaw, 75, and Charles Donley, 41, were instantly killed when their automobile was struck by a Pittsburgh-bound Greyhound bus.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sore and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy, or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-cast feeling is a liver movement. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If the bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas blows up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. A slimy often breaks out in blisters. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes three good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They're certain, wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the liver feel free.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for CARTER'S Little Liver Pills. Look for the name CARTER'S Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

M. Y. COOPER

terms are to be hurled into the fight full force.

A definite part of the Cooper strategy is to make the campaign a battle of comparisons between his record and that of Governor George White, who defeated him in 1930. Thus he hopes to "vindicate" himself and his administration.

The former executive displayed rare confidence in his vote-getting power when interviewed here after making his announcement.

"It is safe to say that nearly all the members of my former cabinet are with me in the contest for the nomination," he said.

Cooper would not admit that there have been differences between himself and State Republican Chairman Ed Schorr and was not ready to believe that Schorr will support Ingalls for the nomination.

URGED, HE SAYS

"Letters urging me to be a candidate for reelection as governor have been pouring in for a long time, but I also have received requests that I be a candidate for U. S. senator," the former chief executive stated.

Already on the Cooper bandwagon, according to Cooper's associates, are Former Welfare Director Hal H. Griswold, Former Director of Industrial Relations Will T. Blake and Former Highway Director Robert Ward.

Although Webb Ryboit, Ashland manufacturer, was first slated to become Cooper's campaign manager, a serious illness may prevent him from accepting the place, it was learned here.

After the campaign gets hot, Cooper headquarters will be set up here and the former governor will spend most of his time in the state capital.

Cooper's tentative platform is summed up in the following paragraph:

"The real issue of deepest concern to all of the people of Ohio is. Reduced taxes through reduction of the operating cost of government and less taxes from those who have been paying more than their share and more taxes from those who have been paying less than their share."

Previous declarations that property taxes should be slashed 25 per cent were reiterated in the formal announcement.

"Intangible wealth, which has not been contributing to the cost of government, must be uncovered and taxed," he said.

WARNS UTILITIES

The campaign against utilities was sounded in this line.

"Such public utility interests, profitably doing business in the state, has not been making a fair, just and equitable contribution to the state's revenues, must pay their proportionate share of taxes."

A permanent distinctly educational fund by which "education must be safeguarded from a threatened breakdown" was advocated, the money to be obtained "from other sources of wealth and the practice of prudent economy."

Cooper also spoke a word against the use of motor vehicle fees and gasoline taxes for anything except "the improvement of our roads and streets."

Cooper's announcement, it was believed here, will bring an immediate rush of definite campaign platforms from other candidates.

"We feel that if Mr. Guthery were sincere in his wishes to aid the county fairs, he would not have published such an article without first taking up the matter of alleged irregularities with our Fair secretary, Mr. Webb, and asking for an explanation.

Connoisseurs Disagree On Yardstick of Beauty

Solons of Pulchritude Enumerate Qualifications Required for Glorification in Famous Stage Productions.

Though New York's three great connoisseurs of feminine loveliness disagree on their precepts of beauty, they all see eye to eye in one respect, which is that perfect legs are essential. Florenz Ziegfeld, impresario of the famous Follies, not only demands candidates for glorification be in possession of a perfect physique and face to match, but also insists on personality. Perhaps it is this last attribute that is responsible for so many of Mr. Ziegfeld's graduates marrying into the millionaire class. George White, producer of the "Scandals," which are not as naughty as the name implies, is not too insistent on physical perfection, but he demands that his showgirls have "charm." But for all his protestations, White has never featured a lady of scrawny, knock-kneed women in any of his shows. The third solon of pulchritude is Earl Carroll, whose "Vanities" have made him famous. Carroll has a rigid standard of beauty. He demands perfection in form and face and does not care anything about charm, magnetism or brains. He is also a believer in beauty unadorned, a fact that has caused him no little inconvenience, certain minions of officialdom not seeing the matter from Carroll's viewpoint. Photo-diagrams above provide a good beauty yardstick by two of the foremost glorifiers of the American girl.

Murder Trial

ing, and Mrs. Yinger's daughter, Gladys Yinger.

Miss Kidney's first trip to Circleville within the last thirteen years was made last week when she identified Walker Brown as one of the men who entered their home on the morning of Dec. 10.

WITNESSES CALLED
Charles Goins, deputy marshal of Hanford Village, identified the shotgun and pistol alleged to have been stolen from the Kidney home. He said he found the shotgun in Hanford and the pistol was found in a shanty when he arrested John Hairston. He also identified the fishing line he said he found in Brown's home. The fishing line was introduced as an exhibit by the defense. Goins said he was not acquainted with Loudermilk but had seen him on several occasions in Hanford.

Glen Geib, editor of The Herald, was called as the state's first confession witness following Miss Kidney's testimony, and told of hearing Loudermilk tell of learning of the Kidney money from a man named Yinger, who at one time lived near the Monroe-twp farmer-blacksmith. The witness said that Loudermilk took Lacey Adams, an alleged co-conspirator, into his confidence and that Adams obtained other men, all colored, Walker Brown, Frank Smith, John Hairston and Arthur Little to "pull the job."

MEETING DESCRIBED
A meeting at the Adams home in which Loudermilk allegedly laid plans for the job and of the meeting at Smith's restaurant on the morning of Dec. 10 was related by the witness as said by Mr. Loudermilk.

The trip to the Kidney home, of Loudermilk parking the Buick car at a fork of the roads west of the residence, of the defendant remaining in the automobile while the others returned to the house were told the jurors. Geib said that Loudermilk related he had not left the automobile but remained until the men returned almost one and one-half hours later.

The trip to Columbus and to the Due Drop Inn as described by Loudermilk where Smith divided the money, Loudermilk said $336, was told and the shopping tour of Smith and Loudermilk into Columbus to buy the large style bills taken at the Kidney home transferred into bills of smaller denomination was described, as allegedly said in Loudermilk's confession.

Larry Van Skaik and O. B. Walker, Franklin-co deputy sheriffs, and Deputy Sheriffs Miller Fissell and Bryan Custer followed Geib to the stand and substantiated his statements concerning Loudermilk's alleged confession.

John "Dum" Hairston, 27, colored, alleged co-conspirator in the burglary and murder, took the witness stand late Wednesday afternoon for the state and named Loudermilk as the instigator of the crime.

Hairston said he had known Loudermilk about two months previous to the affair and had seen him frequently at Due Drop Inn in Hanford Village. The witness said he did not know his name at that time nor did he have any conversations with Loudermilk until on the night a meeting was held by six men.

FAILED TO APPEAR
Hairston said one meeting was planned but was not held as Loudermilk failed to appear and a meeting was held a week later. The meeting is alleged to have been held about a week before the crime was committed. At the meeting, Hairston testified, the men, five colored and Loudermilk, arranged to go to the home and obtain a huge sum of money supposed to have been hidden behind a brick in the chimney. Hairston said they planned to wait in the yard for Mr. Kidney, grab him, tie him and then chloroform him, and that it was not planned that anyone should be killed.

Hairston said after the meeting he next saw Loudermilk on the early morning of Dec. 10. The witness said Loudermilk drove the roadster bearing the five men from Hanford Village to the ravine about a mile from the Kidney home.

WAITED AT DOOR
He said Loudermilk stayed at the car while the four colored men went to the home. The state charges Little, Brown, Adams and Hairston then walked back to the Kidney home and waited for the aged man to appear. Hairston testified Brown struck Mr. Kidney over the head with a club and that he (Hairston), did not enter the home but remained out near the small blacksmith shop in the front yard.

The club, two guns and rope, alleged to have been carried on the trip and a shotgun and pistol said to have been stolen from the Kidney home were identified by Hairston. Hairston said after the affair the men returned to the car and met Loudermilk, and Brown threw the club into bushes near a small stream.

The witness said the group reached Columbus between 6:30 and 7 a. m., and the money was divided and Loudermilk received his share of it. Hairston said he was not in the home and it was only his supposition that the money was taken there. He testified the money was in old type bills.

BORN IN SOUTH
Under cross examination Hairston said he was born in North Carolina and came to Columbus in 1919 and his last employment was hauling rubbish. On direct examination he said that was the way he received his nickname. The witness said on the night of Dec. 9 he attended a party with a number of colored persons in Hanford but Loudermilk was not present. The defense questioned him at length concerning the alleged meeting where the plans were arranged and Hairston said Smith

Informal him of the meeting arrangements. The first witness called at the afternoon session Wednesday was Austin Davis, laborer of Monroe-twp, who found the pick-ax handle by a stream about a mile west of the Kidney home. He said he did not pick up the club but notified the sheriff's office and it was brought to Circleville by Deputy Sheriff Robert Armstrong. Mr. Davis was not questioned by the defense.

Robert Armstrong, the next witness, told of his trip after the club after the sheriff's office had been notified. Continued on Page Six.

Paying By Check

The check system of paying employees is becoming increasingly popular throughout the United States. Large firms have adopted it for several reasons, chief among which is the fact that checks payments remove the danger of payroll robbery, at the same time encouraging employees to open bank accounts. With minor exceptions, no objection is made to the check system by the workers.

Paying salaries by check should be the rule rather than the exception, yet it is difficult to break away from a tradition as old and well-established as the pay envelope. The wage earner likes to have the feel of a coin in his pocket, a sensation which a check cannot gratify because employees like the jingle of coins, and rustle of new paper, thousands of dollars have been lost to payroll bandits and much more important, hundreds of lives have been lost in defense of the payroll satchel. The handling of large sums of money is always attended with risks and introduction of salary payments by check throughout the country would save many lives every year.

Of equal importance is the fact that the wage earner, presented with a check in payment for his services, can almost invariably bring it within the doors of the bank. Possibly at first he will not open an account, utilizing the services of the bank only to trade his check for currency. The transaction, however, establishes business relations between the bank and worker, and in due time the latter may be persuaded to his own benefit to open an account. Thus the fundamental principles of thrift may be inculcated.

Street Crawlers

MOTORISTS and pedestrians are endangered by the operation of thousands of defective automobiles and motor trucks. Every unfit machine that is driven through the streets or upon the highways is a potential source of accidents. The large number of accidents caused by worn-out brakes, defective steering gear and maddened headlights is sufficient reason to demand that these "cripples" be barred from traffic lanes.

There is another decisive argument against opening public thoroughfares to unroadworthy vehicles. On the theory that a system is no stronger than its weakest link, traffic regulations must be made to fit the least efficient machine.

Operation of obsolete machines necessitates enforcement of regulations which were adopted prior to the advent of the highly efficient modern car. The car with four-wheel brakes can stop in half the space required by one with two-wheel brakes, but the former must comply with speed limits determined by the latter. Traffic stagnation is the result.

Most of the large cities have come to recognize the necessity of facilitating rather than restricting traffic, and mechanical efficiency of vehicles is the first prerequisite of this change of policy. Cars that are off like a flash on the green light and brought to a full stop just as quickly neither block traffic nor cause accidents.

Selling To Yourself

IF YOU want something you cannot afford, just resort to economic arguments. Money at times may fail you, but economic arguments never.

A new and larger car this year you can't afford. So make that course an economy by the arguments that the old car will need overhauling and a more expensive automobile will last longer and require fewer repairs.

That long projected European trip will appear this spring in the light of an economy if you can work yourself up to the emotional state in which you are convinced that a nervous breakdown is the alternative for an ocean voyage.

An effective economic argument on clothes is that while the wardrobe is complete for the new season, the failure to put in a new outfit might create a wrong impression at business or the fact that costly results.

Country homes and cottages are expensive to build and maintain but they become an economy when measured in terms of saving wear and tear on the town house and the health-giving qualities of rural life.

Economic arguments bring possession and dispossession.

SYNOPSIS

Lovely Fanchon Meredith is wanted by the San Francisco police in connection with a murder committed by her sweetheart, "Tony." Fanchon did not know he was a gunman. She escapes by airplane under the name of "Smith." Aboard is Evelyn Howard, whom Fanchon had met on a voyage from Hawaii. Evelyn is going to New York to live with her aunt, the wealthy Mrs. Carstairs, whom she never saw. The plane crashes and Fanchon is the only survivor. To get away from Tony and the past, she goes to the Carstairs home as "Evelyn." A strong bond of affection grows between Mrs. Carstairs and her "niece" Collin Carstairs, the son, is at first antagonistic because of his "cousin's" Hawaiian escapades and her self-righteous attitude when his mother offered aid, but Fanchon's sincerity overcomes his objections. They fall in love. After a happy summer at Southampton, Fanchon makes her debut in New York. Collin, though realizing their relationship is a barrier, cannot resist his love. Fanchon cannot acknowledge hers without revealing her identity. Later, a threatening note comes from Tony. She visits him and repulses his advances. Tony informs Fanchon that Evelyn is alive, but has lost her memory. He threatens to expose Fanchon unless she introduces him to Mrs. Carstairs as "Cesare Gilli." Although claiming he has Evelyn in his apartment, Tony refuses to let Fanchon see her. Two days later, he calls at the Carstairs home. Collin and his mother are skeptical about him because of Fanchon's strained attitude in his presence. Months later, Tony tells Fanchon she must induce Mrs. Carstairs to wear her emeralds to the Van Suydam Ball. He suggests that Fanchon go away with him. Fanchon has no alternative. At the ball, Tony wears a Romeo costume similar to Collin's.

CHAPTER XXIV

Collin continued, unheeding: "You have not been yourself since this Cesare Gilli turned up, out of the blue. Who is this man, Evelyn? What is he to you? What hold has he over you?"

She replied, her heart beating rapidly: "None. Collin, don't be absurd. I've told you all about him. He is just a friend."

"A friend," he said, shrewdly, "who, you remember, whom your eyes follow in fear, before whom you alternately pale and flush. Come, I will not believe it. Is there anything troubling you? Is it that he, perhaps, knows of that time in Hawaii? Oh, don't draw away from me, Evelyn! Tell me the truth. Is the man threatening you with the exposure of what was simply an idiotic escapade? Because if so, the remedy lies in your own hands. You have but to tell him simply and at once that I and my mother are aware of the matter. Or—was there something you didn't tell me . . . concerning it?"

"And it there was," she asked, simply fighting for time. "As if that would matter! Nothing would matter. Not even if you told me you had loved another man once and been to him what you said 'what you can never be to me,' he groaned."

She said, unsteadily: "I did love another man once. As girls love, quite unthinkingly. But I—I was nothing to him. Nothing—important. I swear that I've always been my own," she said, strangely. "I've never belonged to someone else."

"Was this man . . . Commander Games?" he asked her. "Oh," she said, instantly, "don't answer. I have no right to ask or to know." "You should know that much," he said, "if you should know that much."

A sudden suspicion seized him. "Gilli, then? With whom you broke, who has followed you, who . . ."

"I'll always love you. And I'm going to talk to mother tonight," said Collin.

now annoys you by his importunities? Of course, Gilli! I was blind not to have seen."

She did not answer. She could not. It was true. And yet it was untrue.

"Oh, Evelyn," Collin said, with a more complete loss of self-control than she had ever witnessed in him. "I have been a blundering idiot. And I have used this man as an excuse to stay here longer . . . an excuse to be near you. I should, I realize, have gone long ago. Perhaps I should have run from you that very first day in the rose garden . . . when we quarreled, and when, against my will, I fell in love with you."

He said, trying to speak more lightly, "but it was—Kismet, I suppose. I fancy that perhaps my thinking you were afraid of Gilli and wanting to stay near and protect you, was all romanticizing. If, as I now believe, you were once in love with him and are no longer, that would, of course, account for your attitude when with him, your reluctance. It is a situation which is not unusual and you are capable of handling it yourself. So nothing remains for me except—to go away."

There was a silence. He said, sharply: "Evelyn? Evelyn? Why," he said, "you're crying!"

"No. That is," explained Fanchon, shakily, "I'm trying very hard not to. Tears," she went on, recovering herself a little, "may be appropriate to Juliet, but the, 'I'll be noticed' . . ."

"That means," he said, brushing her attempt at lightness aside, "that you do care for me! Oh, tell me, Evelyn! Let me take that much sorrowful comfort away with me."

"Yes," she told him, simply, "I do care, Collin."

After all, she had nothing to lose by her confession for she had already lost—everything.

He reached out his arm, he took her close to his breast and kissed the closed eyes and the faintly fragrant cheek and the warm, red mouth. He said, after a long moment: "I can't give you up, Evelyn! After all, cousins have . . . and do, . . . marry."

Hope That New Test May Eradicate Scarlet Fever

Co-operation of Parents and Health Officers May Wipe Out This Highly Contagious Disease That in Many Cases Has Serious After Effects

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health New York City.

SCARLET FEVER is a disease of children, rarely seen in adults. It is highly contagious and rapidly spreads from one child to another. All too often serious complications follow this disease.

Children react differently to this malady. A child with a mild form of scarlet fever may pass it on to another child, who then may have the disease in a much more serious form.

I wonder how many of you Dr. Copeland know that there is a test by which a child's susceptibility to scarlet fever can be determined. This is called the "Dick test." It is based on the same principles as the "Schick test," which determines a child's liability to take diphtheria.

In the Dick test a small amount of a prepared toxin is injected under the skin. It is a simple and painless procedure. If a reddish spot appears on the skin within twenty-four hours the child is regarded as susceptible to scarlet fever. If the reaction is positive this does not disappear for from two to three days.

W. J. Q. Q.—What treatment is indicated for scarlet? The pain has persisted for about four weeks. Does this require operation?

A.—Scarlet can usually be traced to some underlying infection. Try

When the test is negative and the child is not susceptible to scarlet fever there is only a slight discoloration and this disappears within twenty-four hours.

Although scarlet fever is extremely contagious some children do not contract it. This is due to a natural immunity which they possess. This immunity, or resistance to the disease, increases with age, and that is one of the reasons why the disease is rarely seen in adults.

Few young children possess this immunity. It is important for them to acquire it, if possible.

A Simple Test

Many authorities believe every child should be tested to find out whether he is susceptible to scarlet fever. If the test is positive the child should receive a series of injections of scarlet fever toxin so that he may build up his resistance to the disease. These injections are given at weekly intervals. Their success is checked by another Dick test, to determine whether or not the desired immunity has been developed.

Encourage by the amazing success of the efforts to control diphtheria. It is hoped that scarlet fever will be eradicated eventually. This can only be hoped for when there is complete cooperation between parents and health officials.

Since the test is so simple every mother should think seriously about the advantage of this added protection for her child. An' how, talk with your doctor about it.

Reports from Hollywood indicate that "Ten Cents a Dance" has been given all the elements of popular entertainment by its producers.

This Columbia picture was based upon the popular song "Ten Cents a Dance."

NEW PLAY IS CHOSEN FOR LITTLE THEATRE

"I'll Explain Everything," a three act farce by Clark Willard, was the play for the March production of the Thespian Little Theater as a result of the votes of the townspeople and pupils. Betty Leist, who was first to vote for the play will receive two tickets to the show when it is presented at the high school. Miss Leist was also a winner before.

The next performance of the Little Theater will be given Tuesday, Feb. 23, at the high school auditorium. Each high school, eighth grade and seventh grade pupil who has sold at least eight tickets for this production, "The Ghost Parade," by the morning of Feb. 22 will be admitted free on that afternoon to see the matinee of the show. All other seventh and eighth grade and high school pupils will be admitted for ten cents.

It is thought by Director J. W. Fetherlin that the Thespian Little Theater plays are being put on primarily in the interest of the pupils with the hope of helping them in the phase of their educational process known as self-expression or emotional response.

To this end, the director believes, all pupils desiring to participate or to see and hear the play should have an opportunity to do so. This ticket selling arrangement will offer admittance to pupils who do not feel inclined to become salesmen, and also provides admittance for pupils who do not have the necessary price, but who are ambitious to put their commercial salesmanship training to practical use. So, although there is no compulsion to attend, every pupil of the upper six grades is offered two opportunities to do so.

Murder Trial

notified by Mr. Davis it was found. Upon the testimony of Phillip Yinger, Monroe-twp. farmer who lives about a half-mile from the Kidney home, the state introduced a shotgun and pistol alleged to have been taken from the Kidney home on the early morning of Dec. 16. Mr. Yinger also described how the doors of the Kidney home were barred at night and related how John Kidney arose early every morning to care for his invalid sister. He said Mr. Kidney would determine which way the wind was blowing before leaving the house and would use a door that would prevent his sister from being in a draft.

Under cross examination he said Miss Kidney was now living at his home. Mr. Yinger said he was not related to the Kidneys.

Mrs. Yinger said she and her family stayed at the Kidney home for ten days after the crime and took care of the sister, until she was moved to the Yinger home. Mrs. Yinger testified Miss Kidney suffered chloroform burns on her chest and arms. Mrs. Yinger said she could identify that type of burn as she had once been burned by chloroform. Miss Gladys Yinger also testified of the injuries suffered by Miss Kidney and said she had learned to know a chloroform burn through 11 years of practical nursing.

John Hairston was the last witness called before adjournment.

CONDEMNED SLAYER SAYS NOT WORRIED

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 11.—"Will I break down when the judge sentences me to hang? I'll say I won't."

Three days after an Arizona jury found her guilty of first degree murder carrying a mandatory death sentence, Winnie Ruth Judd remained as emotionless today as she was during her sensational trial for killing Agnes Anne Lerol.

The "double trunk murderess" of Mrs. Lerol and Hedvig Samuelson, whose bodies were shipped in trunks from Phoenix to Los Angeles, expressed concern, however, over the condition of her husband, W. C. Judd, one-time army physician.
